Thanks Piet

Learn Joomla with Video Tutorials by Joomtorial - Learn Joomla with Video Tutorials by Joomtorial

Learn Joomla with Video Tutorials by Joomtorial - Learn Joomla with Video Tutorials by Joomtorial Generated: 26 April, 2024, 10:03

I had a look at the foobla bridge. It's 70 euro (6m support), very expensive for a bridge.

The Acajoom seams good but I understood that the auto-responder directionality is implemented in the PRO version (130 E with ¡BounceBack Plus and ¡Links PRO).

So if I use the PHPlist for my email marketing as a stand alone and I use Joomla for my website what do I risk ? and how to proceed ?
the CB (community builder) is it necessarily ?
Best regards
Riad
autoresponder with joomla Posted by joomtorial - 26 Jan 2010 21:25
Hello Riad,

The Foobla Bridge would be necessary with PHP List to synchronize your Joomla registered users.

An example would be, a user registers on your site and would be able to apply for your newsletter - this would likely be a Foobla module. This user would then be added to a certain list/newsletter in your PHP List as Foobla will take care of users synchronization with PHP List.

When you would use PHP List without bridge (surely possible) - you would not have a Joomla User synchronization with PHP List.

But again, maybe you don't want that. Maybe you do not want users to register and become a Joomla user. And maybe you only want them to apply for your newsletter and have PHP List autorespond on that. The risk in using PHP List stand alone. I cannot think of any.

How to proceed: Install PHP List and get your first list/newsletter running!

Learn Joomla with Video Tutorials by Joomtorial - Learn Joomla with Video Tutorials by Joomtorial Generated: 26 April, 2024, 10:03

CB - Community Builder - Is it necessary. That depends on what you want to do with it. It does offer an extra layer of nice Joomla user gadgets and options such as extended registration forms, user can write their own blogs and much more. CB will offer a community feel to your Joomla website if used properly. Although CB can be a very time consuming component to set up the way you would like it.

autoresponder with joomla Posted by riadrmi - 27 Jan 2010 17:09
nank you piet
for all that precious information will take you informed about my progress
Sest regards